Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,

I would like to add my vote to those who are not satisfied with the current terms of the settlement with Microsoft. Those penalties which it does impart on the company will likely prove ineffectual in their attempts to stop Microsoft from continuing its practices of leveraging other companies out of business. As an example, forcing Microsoft to donate software to schools is preposterous. The academic world is one of the few realms in which non-Windows machines have a foothold. Such donations would only work in Microsoft's favor.

If you believe at least part of your responsibility is to make sure such behavior is not repeated, you will not accept the current proposed settlement.

Sincerely,

Trevor Goodyear
